

Hello All,

23 February 2018

This has been a crazy week. Snow, rain, ice and a mid-winter day off. I am praying for all this weekend which may see more snow.

We only have a few things coming this next week.

First, we have a math test this next Friday, March 2nd. The study guide was corrected today and each student now has identified what needs to be worked on.

Second, On Monday we will be introducing our STEAM projects to students and breaking down into teams. Each team will have a project to complete and a poster for the STEAM fair in April. There will be more information coming next week.

Reminder:

Each student needs to complete two (2) hours of community service for each quarter. Community service is where students does tasks, jobs, chores but is not paid for them. It can be with the church or out in the community with you or others.

God bless,

Mr. Orgeron
